

What Happened Next?

- John and Lucy married and had two sons, Victor and John Woodhouse. John Woodhouse studied art and contributed to his father's life work, Birds of America. He also collaborated with his father to produce a book of animal drawings entitled The Viviparous Quadrupeds of North America. (What do viviparous and quadruped mean? See What Does That Mean to find out.)
- John James Audubon pursued his dream of making a book of life-sized pictures of the birds of North America. He traveled all over America, collecting birds, drawing pictures, and making studies.
- In 1826, John traveled to England to find a publisher for his book, Birds of America. The first volume of the Birds of America appeared in 1827 and the last came out in 1838.
- Founded in 1905 to protect our natural environment, the National Audubon Society was named for John James Audubon, artist, naturalist and explorer.
- To learn more about the National Audubon Society write:

National Audubon Society

700 Broadway

New York, New York, 10003

Or visit the website at www.audubon.org